

Research Tools: Corpus Text List and Concordance Line Information

The Corpus Text List tool is only available when connected to tPM Home Network. Concordance Line Information can be viewed for any concordance line from off-site networks too.

Corpus Text List

The Corpus Text List page allows you to view a list of texts for the currently selected corpus. This option is not available for all corpora. If it is available, the "Get Text List" button will be enabled.

Callout boxes provide the following instructions:

- If the selected text has a website link, you can click this button to open the website in your default browser.
- The list includes the Major Text Category, the Text Name and the number of words (including punctuation).
- If you click the "Show Details" button, you will be able to see the beginning of each text as well as text level information.

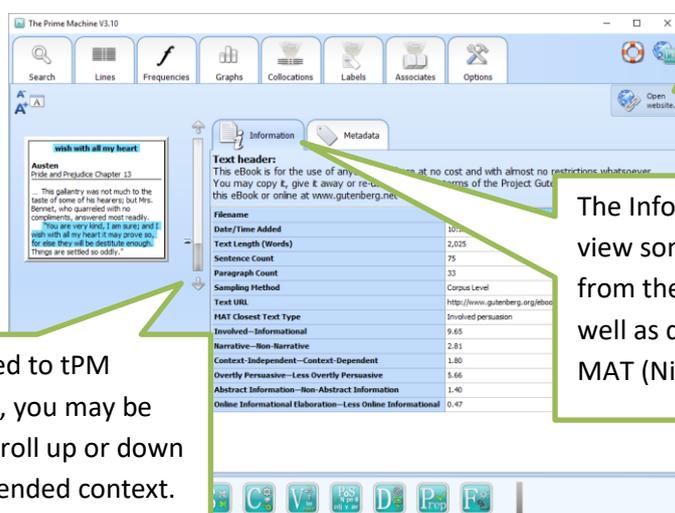

Clicking the "Show Details" button takes you to the same screen as is used for presenting additional information about a concordance line.

Concordance Line Information

To find out more information about a specific concordance line, right-click or double-click on a concordance line or concordance card and select "Show info..."

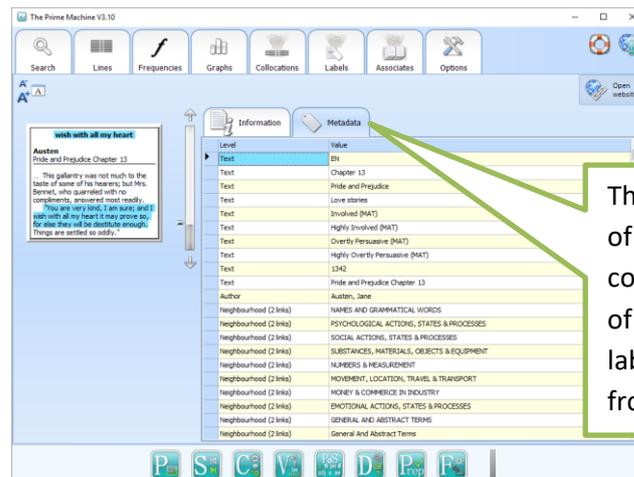

When you right-click or double-click on a concordance line or concordance card, you will see "Show info..." on the pop-up menu.

If the selected text has a website link, you can click this button to open the website in your default browser.

When connected to tPM Home Network, you may be permitted to scroll up or down to view the extended context. This is not available for all corpora.

The Information page lets you view some of the information from the original text file, as well as dimension scores from MAT (Nini 2014).
